I would like to express my deep opposition against deregulating the FCC controls on regarding television, radio, and newspaper outlets. While the argument is made that there are more choices today than in the past. I experience is the number of choices of channels, radio stations, newspapers may be more, what is available as far as diversity is much more limited. In order for a democracy to survive we must have information and debate in order to make educated and informed opinions. This can not happen if a half a dozen or less corporation own the radio and television airwaves, as well as the newspapers. Please do not allow this to happen.

Mavis Hasey (mmhasey@pacbell.net) writes:

Dear Commissioner Adelstein,

It is VERY IMPORTANT that you do NOT allow companies to own or control additional networks or broadcast stations. This violates the Public Trust, which is the FCCs solemn responsibility to protect.

Our Democracy requires good voter access to substantive news, informed analysis, and commentary from many voices. In recent years as a few large conglomerates purchased numerous networks and broadcast stations, they sacrificed our right to know in the name of efficiency. Efficiency is not the desired endpoint if it impedes our Democracy.

As these few voices began controlling the airwaves, the quality of television news and analysis dropped sharply, and sameness developed across the channel lineup. Network news lost its substance, becoming little more than entertainment. Fluff stories now crowd out critically important domestic and foreign news stories.

Allowing even fewer companies to control the airwaves will not serve the Public Trust. Americans deserve to know whats going on. We want expert analysis, a variety of informed viewpoints, and a larger world view. Most of all, we want access to quality information so we can make up our own minds.

But what choice do we have, sitting there with our remotes in hand, if the networks all offer us the same thing?

Sincerely,
Mavis Hasey

I saw your comments about deregulation on C Span this morning. As someone who has worked in broadcasting for the past 30 years, I personally want to thank you for having the common sense to see past the smoke and mirrors and discovering why the major media companies are so supportive of deregulation. It's called greed.

In my city ( Rochester NY), when I started my career, there were 8 radio stations that had local news 24/7. Today there are just two. And one of them is a public radio station. The other, owned by Clear Channel, is now affiliated with a local TV station Clear Channel owns. So, in a sense, there is only 1 radio station covering local news. I congratulate you and the other Commissioner who voted against deregulation. And let's hope Congress will take the appropriate steps to reverse this trend.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Commissioner Adelstein:

I had the opportunity to see your speech on CSPAN last night. You should be congratulated and thanked for having the back-bone to take the stand against what is very obviously yet another sellout of the American people. I am registered as an independent, but all I really am is just an American. Its very disturbing to watch as everything that I have always believed about this country becomes twisted and stolen by greedy, self-serving people who have the audacity to call themselves public servants. Unfortunately these parasites have no problem using their position of power to do as they wish with no regard for the public. The 3 republicans at the FCC are as corrupt as they come, and in my opinion should not only be fired for not fulfilling the duties of their job, but should also be tried for treason.

In short, I only wish to say thank you for your stand and for trying to protect Americans from what will no doubt be a continued onslaught from this administration. In a world that sometimes seems as if no one cares enough or has conscious enough to just do whats right, either morally or otherwise, you offer a glimmer of hope in what would otherwise be a bleak scenario.

It seems ironic, or perhaps befitting, that in consideration of these regulatory changes that would take away the voice of the people, you refuse to listen to the people or their representatives in Congress. In considering an amendment that would promote censorship and secrecy in our media, you refuse to declassify the text of the proposal. Surely by passing this resolution, you would abridge the freedom of our press, selling it off to an already-known high bidder. The beautiful irony is that noone will even understand what has happened, because there will be noone to tell the story. But you will know what has happened, and you will know that you have done it. Will you sleep as an American?
